HOUSING FACILITIES, GENERAL.

The indoor portion of the sheltered housing facility is dirty, with excessive cobwebs and dust accumulated on the ceiling, hair caught on the wire tops of primary enclosures, and the floor is littered with feces and debris. The degree of cleanliness on the inside of this facility is not sufficient to prevent or eliminate odors on the inside of the facility. Dirty conditions caused by inadequate cleaning can facilitate transmission of disease to the animals housed therein, as well as attract pests which can cause discomfort or pose another risk of disease transmission. All surfaces of housing facilities must be cleaned and sanitized when necessary to satisfy generally accepted husbandry standards and practices. Correct by cleaning and sanitizing all surfaces of the housing facility as needed to prevent odors, insects, pests or vermin, and to satisfy generally accepted husbandry standards and practices.

Correct by: 21 October 2015.
