Attending veterinarian and adequate veterinary care (dealers and exhibitors).

The facility did not use appropriate methods to diagnose and treat a blackbuck that, per the disposition records, died with a "prolapsed uterus" on 04/08/2026. Per a facility representative, the blackbuck had this prolapse for many months to a year. The veterinarian was not consulted regarding the condition affecting this animal because, per a facility representative, the blackbuck was eating well and in good condition otherwise. The facility was not sure what caused the prolapse or where it originated from describing it as protruding about 3 to 4 inches from the back end and having a brown dried skin appearance. When the situation was described to the attending veterinarian, he explained that if he were consulted, he would have immobilized the animal for closer examination and was worried about cancer with a condition lasting that long. Without veterinary assessment, the diagnosis might not have been accurate thus impeding this animal from receiving appropriate treatment. In coordination with the attending veterinarian, the facility must use appropriate methods to prevent, control, diagnose, and treat diseases and injuries. Correct by 05/22/2026.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with facility representatives.
