3.81

Environment enhancement to promote psychological well-being.

At the time of inspection, the USDA inspector observed enrichment items within enclosures; however, the environmental enhancement program was not available for inspection. An environmental enhancement plan that documents the appropriate provisions to provide enrichment and special considerations (such as single-housed non-human primates and infants) must be directed by the attending veterinarian and available for inspection. This is necessary to ensure the psychological well-being of the animals. Ensure that a documented plan for environmental enrichment that addresses the required elements is maintained and available for inspection.

Correct by November 1st, 2021.

3.84(a)

Cleaning, sanitization, housekeeping, and pest control.

Two enclosures housing 2 and 7 common marmosets respectively had an accumulation of feces on the benches underneath the feeding and water bowls. The different colors and textures of feces (soft and light brown vs hard and black) indicated that the feces had not been removed in several days. Excessive build up of feces can be a disease hazard and attract unwanted pests. Excreta and food waste must be spot cleaned with sufficient frequency to ensure all animals the freedom to avoid contact with excreta or as often as necessary to reduce disease hazards, insects, pests and
