Outdoor housing facilities.

The facility, which houses primates in outdoor enclosures, lacks an adequate perimeter fence. Several sections of the fence are missing entire wooden planks, and gaps are present at the base due to wood deterioration. In addition, the majority of the perimeter fence stands at less than 6 feet in height, and the distance between the west perimeter fence and multiple primary enclosures measures only approximately 1 ft 4 inches.

An inadequate perimeter fence leaves the facility vulnerable and can allow intruders or wild animals to enter and potentially endanger the primates.

The perimeter fence must prevent unauthorized humans and animals—such as dogs, skunks, and raccoons—from entering or passing under it and contacting the nonhuman primates. It must be at least 6 feet high and positioned at least 3 feet from the primary enclosure to prevent any physical contact between animals inside the enclosure and those outside the fence. Correct by June 1, 2026.

This inspection and exit interview were conducted with the facility representatives.
